The Abuse of Fame.

There was a man who went to fight—
A warrior brave and bold,
Who proved himself to be a knight
Like Launcelot of old;
He won the people's high regard,
The deeds he did were great;
And may he reap a rich reward
From people and from State.

Yet still, slas, 'twas well if he
Had never sallied out
To spread our power on the sea
And put the foe to rout,
For now that his great name has been Placed on our history's page.
His cousins and his aunts begin
To go upon the stage.
